Staff Spotlight:

Mr. Jacobsen is a teacher in New Endeavors Transition. After attending Prospect High School, he went to Harper College and ISU for a degree in psychology. Before working at NET, he worked at a movie theater, in a warehouse, as a dishwasher, in an autism clinic, and an elementary school. Before going into education, Mr. J thought about being an ER doctor. He appreciates working with students.

Mr. Jacobsen's favorite sport is gymnastics. His hobbies include being outdoors, watching movies, rock climbing, cooking, and bike riding. Mr. Jacobsen doesn't have a favorite food but enjoys trying new things.

Advice:

Steps for cleaning your house/apartment:

1. De-clutter and pick up loose items on the floor, take the trash out
2. Dust the whole house, followed by disinfecting.
3. Proceed to vacuum
4. Mop/Swiffer the floors.
5. Scrub bathroom (shower, sink, toilet, etc.)
6. Clean the kitchen (degrease, dishes, clean sink, clean out the fridge)
7. Lastly clean the bedroom (do the laundry and make your bed)

Follow these steps and you will keep germs away, you will be able to find things easier, and people will not think less of you.

What Time Is It?

Last week with Ms. Rhodes, school psychologist, we estimated time for a variety of activities, such as walking around the school, doing 3 push-ups, getting a drink, going to your locker, etc. First, the students themselves estimated how much time it might take for each activity. Then, with a partner and a stopwatch, students did the activity and found out the actual time. The times were recorded and compared. Some students estimated too much or not enough time. This activity teaches how to keep track of time and helps with planning ahead.

Students are better at guessing how long something might take like getting ready for school in the morning. This helps with staying organized and making a schedule. To sum it all up, estimating time is important for life because it is necessary for all humans to be successful.
